FOUR KILLED IN RAIL WRECK IN IOWA THIS MORN

Eight Seriously Injured When Train Fell Into a Creek

Guttenberg, Ia., Oct. 11—(AP)—Four persons were killed and eight were seriously injured when a Milwaukee passenger train left the rails near here early today and plunged into a creek.

The identified dead: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rupperecht, Dubuque, Ia., passengers. Charles Strazinsky, 69, engineer, of Dubuque.

Frank Mann, 55, fireman, of Dubuque, Iowa.

The wrecked train, a local from Savanna, Ill., to LaCrosse, Wis., included among the approximately 25 passengers in its single coach a number of school children who boarded the train at Turkey River shortly before the accident.

Engine Exploded
Rounding a curve at 7:25 A. M., enroute to Guttenberg, the train plunged from the creek trestle into the stream bed. The engine exploded and the cab and tender were torn from the boiler as it struck the water. A mail dispatching car and the passenger coach were both derailed and overturned.

In the excitement the less seriously hurt crawled from the mangled cars and began the rescue work. Aid was summoned from Guttenberg and nearby farmers came to help.

Track Torn Up
Milwaukee railroad officials began an immediate investigation to determine causes for the wreck, but said the track was so badly torn for 30 feet where the engine left the rails that it could not be determined if the rail was damaged before the accident.

said. But Mayor Schmidt revealed that it was perfectly typed on two sheets of legal cap, mostly in black but in some parts in red ink.

It was understood the note first warned the family not to notify federal officers, and that it went on to point out three other cases where federal officers had been called in to solve kidnappings, and families of the victims had to pay the ransom money demanded. The note also was understood to have advised the family to contact certain individuals of national importance. No intimation of their names was forthcoming. Toward its close the note, it was reported, referred to the fact that the gardener, Fowler Woollet, husband of Mrs. Stoll's maid was away and that the kidnaper would have to hurry.

Abuse For Family
The note was directed to "Stoll" It contained abuse of the family and a hint that Stoll's brother, William A. Stoll, would "be next." Schmidt said there were no misspelled words, that the typing was neat and the diction good.

"It's my opinion that the man who wrote the note was an educated man," Schmidt added.

There was a typed demand for $30,000 ransom. That was scratched out and $50,000 inserted.

Stoll armed himself and went with Fardin to look over some barns and empty houses in the vicinity. He found nothing. This search was repeated by citizens and officers later last night.

30 to 35 Years Old
Mrs. Woollet described the kidnaper as 30 to 35 years old, weighing about 150 pounds, with dark slicked back and dark complexion. His description was broadcast by the Louisville police radio station WPDE and by the police in Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Dayton and other cities.

The Stoll family was ready to deal with the kidnappers. Berry Stoll issued a statement saying he had "just found the note regarding the ransom and that arrangements are being made according to the note." There was no hint that these arrangements were. Schmidt said the note promised the kidnappers would contact the family "within five days."

William Stoll told reporters the family would welcome negotiations from the kidnaper. Later he issued the following statement:

Family's Statement
"It is our desire that every opportunity be kept open for Mrs. Stoll's safe return.

To the end, we will appreciate phone lines of my residence and those of other members of the family be kept as free as possible—and therefore it is requested that any necessary calls be made.

"Our chief concern is, of course, the safety of Mrs. Stoll."

Fingerprints on the piece of pipe welded by the kidnaper, which was found in the house, were photographed, and a search was made for other fingerprints.

Edward M. Seay, district commander of the American Legion, Department of Kentucky, offered the aid of the entire district membership to Capt. Charles K. Osborn, chief of the county police. Between 300 and 500 men could be mustered immediately for patrol work or any other duty requested.

Seay said.

The assistance of the Kentucky National Guard was offered to Chief of Detectives Edward T. McElliot by Brig. Gen. Ellerbe W. Carter of Louisville, who said he was instructed to make the offer by Adjutant General H. H. Denhardt of Frankfort. General Carter said 4,500 men were available on short notice if needed.

Entertainments In H. S. Gymnasium This Year; Start Tonight

High school class plays and all entertainment activities will be staged in the high school gymnasium this season, due largely to the activity of the Dramatic club of the high school. A large collapsible stage, 36 by 19 feet, has been constructed for use in presenting class plays and other programs which require an elevated stage, the stage having been made possible by the Dramatic club cooperating with the board of education.

The stage will be used for the first time this evening in presenting the first number on the high school entertainment program, the Brown Menly Duo. In the past any activities requiring a stage have necessarily been transferred to the South Central school, where the adult public have occupied the desks in the large assembly room. Under the new arrangement the seating accommodations are much more comfortable and a much larger number can be accommodated.

It was so interesting and well given that members felt they had been with her on this trip.

the piano by Mrs. Nate Morrill. At the close of the program, Mrs. Powell served very delicious refreshments.

Judge and Mrs. Leech Honored at Community Club Meet

Judge Leech and Mrs. Leech were guests of honor at Burleau-Community Club which met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Beatty near LaMoille on Friday evening, Oct. 5th, having previously been entertained at even dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Fauble. Judge Leech was the speaker of the evening at the club.

He gave a very interesting talk, the "rugged individual" being one of his topics. He regrets that our world is trying to do away with the "rugged individual" and wishes that instead, we might have more of them. He gave as an example of the "rugged individual," Abraham Lincoln, speaking of how he rose from a poverty-stricken boy to the highest office of the land, that of President. He gave instances of other well-known public men who came of from a city's polished circle of men but from some obscure country home or town. Our forefathers who built this country were "rugged individuals" the type that perseveres in the face of obstacles until they win. That, he said, is the type of which we need more.

He also told something of his duties as both county judge and probate judge. He related many incidents that happen in connection with his work, most of them of a sad nature. However, as in all work there are a few funny angles and of these he also told.

At the close of his talk a second round of applause was given Judge Leech to show the appreciation of the club members.

"Beyond the Horizon" at Frances Shimer Jr., College, Fri., Oct. 19

The Hedgerow Theater Company of Rose Valley, Pa., directed by Jasper Deeter, will appear Friday evening, Oct. 19th, at 8 o'clock at Frances Shimer Junior College gymnasium, Mt. Carroll.

The Hedgerow players have established an enviable reputation in the east. For eleven years they have produced the most outstanding plays of the American stage. More than six hundred actors have performed under Jasper Deeter's direction at the Hedgerow Theater. For fifty weeks each year the players perform each day and this program is changed daily. This is their first transcontinental tour and Mt. Carroll is their only stop between Chicago and Omaha. They will present "Beyond the Horizon" by Eugene O'Neill. This is one of O'Neill's earlier plays and is not the study of neurotic types which many of his later plays exhibit. It is a serious drama about real people with desires which seem to lie just beyond the horizon. There are moments of comedy and of emotional climax; there are colorful characters and at all times there is a poetic feeling in the writing which inspires.

First Lady Fifty Years Old Today

Washington, Oct. 11—(AP)—It's Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's fiftieth birthday today. But Sisle and Buzzie Dall are much more excited over it than is the First Lady.

So that the grandchildren might blow out the birthday candles, the celebration was fixed for tea-time instead of dinner. And the cake was about all the festivity Mrs. Roosevelt would permit, for her theory is:

"The more you forget your birthday as you grow older, the younger you stay."

Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, who celebrated her eightieth birthday at Hyde Park a few weeks ago, was expected for tea.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, who live in nearby Virginia planned to drop in. Elliott said:

"Mother's a difficult person to celebrate birthdays with. She wants the day to slide over with as little fuss as possible."

Mrs. Roosevelt's daily calendar was peculiarly clear on public appearances for the day—perhaps because she didn't want the public to make a fuss over it either.

But the First Lady's friends remembered the day. Flowers filled every vase; telegrams stacked up; gifts as good wishes poured into the White House.

Mrs. Lewis Entertains Ideal Club

A very pleasant meeting of the Ideal Club was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Lewis. At roll call each member named her favorite flower. The club will study Alaska, this year and Mrs. L. W. Miller read the first three chapters of the book, "Alaska, Our Northern Wonderland."

Interesting historical events, a description of the city, Ketchikan, the first port which our steamers call on entering Alaska, and an account of the golden fisheries in this locality, depicted in these chapters, were much enjoyed.

At the close of the program, refreshments were served by the hostess and a pleasant social hour followed.

MacNIDER CHANGES POSITION ON BONUS.

Col. Hanford MacNider, former national commander of the American Legion and former assistant secretary of war, who steadfastly has opposed turning into cash immediately the soldiers' bonus, which is not due for many years, has changed his attitude toward the issue. In a statement issued through the Associated Press from his home in Mason City, Iowa, he said:

"I am for the immediate payment of the adjusted compensation certificates. For years I have fought against similar demands because I believed that such an attitude on the part of the legion would constitute repudiation of promises, at least implied, when we secured passage of that legislation.

"When, however, the government, in the name of emergency, repudiates its promises to pay in gold and deliberately deserts every pretense of a sound dollar or a balanced budget, it repudiates its promise to every service man who holds a certificate and takes from that man's dependents the insurance they had a right to expect.

"You may say the same thing has happened to every one who holds a government security, and it is true, but the holder of a bond may sell it or otherwise hedge against inflationary activities. The veteran has no such opportunity. It is unfair, unjust, and indefensible not to free him from that handicap. Half the dollar the government promised him is gone."

We suspect that much of the opposition to the soldiers' bonus has been tempered of late by that same line of thought.

Our own opinion has been that first of all attention should be given to the wounded and the ailing, and that compensation to others was remotely secondary. We were of the opinion further that persistence in the claim of those who could trace no injury or ailment to war service had an adverse effect upon public attitude toward those who were deserving of more than they were receiving.

Out side of that such feeling we had, if any, on the subject was based upon the principle set forth by General Grant in opposition to added compensation based upon the power of the ballot.

We were in sympathy with the desires of presidents to reduce public expenditures.

We were in sympathy with President Roosevelt when he sponsored the economy measures directed at the magnitude of expenditures on veterans' claims and on public payrolls, because we were hopeful that it was the principal step in the direction of a sound financial policy, instead of the only step in that direction.

We have had in mind that in addition to the assertion by Col. MacNider that there was an implied if not positive pledge that precluded cash payment when the bonus legislation was obtained, there is the claim set up by another soldier that when the soldiers received cash to the amount of half their certificates, they received the amount they originally demanded; that congress refused the demand for cash, but practically doubled the sum and made it payable twenty years hence. Immediate payment of the half offset the original demand and left the other half still to be realized upon.

We were inclined to the view as put forth by one statesman, as he viewed the proposal to pay the bonus immediately in printing press money, that it was proposed to pay a note that was not due with money that was not honest.

All those things affected the public mind in contemplation of immediate payment in cash of payments not due for ten or fifteen years, as the case may have been.

But there has been vast change in public affairs and administration policies since then, and there are some of us who have had a feeling growing upon us that if we are to pursue policies that are unsound, if not dishonest, that the rewards better go to those who have served the country than merely to those who have established the best political pipe line into the United States treasury and the campaign funds resting therein.

AMERICA'S HEROES.

Once in a blue moon the grand old game of baseball tosses to the top a character so typically American that the public takes him to its heart and makes a national hero of him.

This happened years ago with Ty Cobb; it happened a little later with Babe Ruth; it seems to have happened again this fall with Dizzy Dean.

All these men exemplify to perfection the kind of spirit that makes baseball such a definitely and everlastingly American form of sport.

Cobb represented the flaming, unendingly competitive young athlete who was out to win at all costs. There was an aura of rowdiness about him, which was as it should be—for baseball, fundamentally, has a streak of rowdiness itself.

Ruth was the big, burly, bruiser type; the physical giant whose natural gifts are coupled with an intense, juvenile joy in life.

And Dean, in turn, is the braggart who is forever making good his boasts.

Every small town, every big city neighborhood, has seen these men in miniature, over and over again. And that is why they became national figures.

General Johnson said his job at NRA was like mounting the guillotine and betting the ax wouldn't drop. I'm betting it will drop, but my official head will go with a smile.—Donald Richberg.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

"This frosting cupcakes is real fun, but there are many to be done, and I am getting rather tired," said Doty. "I must rest."

"Who will lend a hand a little while?" "I will," said Duncy with a smile. "Give me that bowl of frosting, and I will do my very best."

"Ha, ha!" laughed wee Coppy. "This should be a funny sight. Just wait and see. I will bet that wee Duncy spills the frosting all around the place."

"And look! His tongue is hanging out. He will eat the frosting. I have no doubt. Instead of on the cupcakes, it will be smeared on his face."

However, Duncy fooled the little crowd, and soon said: "I should be allowed to lick this bowl 'cause I didn't spill a single drop."

"Each cupcake, now, is quite all right, and really quite a pretty sight," A cake then said. "Okay, son, lick me 'until you want to stop."

"Hey, give us all some," Doty said. "And now we must be packed away. In big cake boxes we will stay until we are taken into town. Who will pack us in real tight?"

"I will!" said Coppy. "It will be great fun." Then, to a baker he cried, "Run and get the boxes, so this work all can be done by night."

The boxes shortly were brought out and then the bunch heard Coppy shout: "Form in a line, you cupcakes, so there won't be much delay."

The Tines watched him work a while, and then wee Goldy, with a smile said: "Gee they are packed away dandy. Coppy is doing fine work today."

(The Tines see a funny bakery wagon in the next story.)

the reality of the experiences that created both the Book and the Church, and to find the reproduction of those experiences in our own lives.

The Ethiopian in our lesson was a man of the Book. That was to his credit. He had discovered the Old Testament, and he evidently loved it and read it with zeal.

But, like more than one man of the Book, he had not yet come to the fullness and richness of the experience underlying the things that he read. So it was that he needed some expounder, like Philip, to interpret the meaning of spiritual truth for him and to make it vital in his own life.

The Ethiopian evidently was an apt and ready student, as every true and open-minded lover of the Scriptures must be. He responded with simple sincerity to Philip's exposition of the Christian way, and he was immediate and urgent in his determination to be baptized. When that had been achieved, Philip suddenly disappeared, but the Ethiopian went on his way rejoicing.

That is a very good test of our reading of the Bible and of our experience. Do we go on our way rejoicing, or does the Bible induce in us a narrow and controversial spirit and bitter misgivings?

The Bible is a book of joy and of blessedness. No man can read it in the right spirit or discover the experiences that it records without having a great newness of happiness come into his life.

The Bible has not always meant that to men and women. There are those who have read it in somberness, to whom it has been so serious and sacred a book that they have not quite dared to take it into their hearts.

The Bible cannot be taken too sacredly, but it is a book for the minds and hearts of ordinary men. It is the story of how common people and great people alike, through contact with Jesus, experienced the blessedness of salvation and had their lives changed.

As a record of the life of Christ, the Bible is not complete. That life is still being lived, and every manifestation of the love and truth of Jesus in the lives of men today is an added chapter in the Book of Grace, though it may never be written in actual words.

We should take the Bible, then, as an unfolding book, as the revelation of God and as the revelation of a great experience that God brings to men through Jesus Christ. Our study of it will be unavailing unless it brings to us first of all the joy and blessedness that ten down the story of Jesus, and all that he meant to them in their contact with Him.

'NOTHER MAX

First it was Max Schmeling, then Max Baer; now it's Max Knecht, above, who is on his way to the top of the heavyweight boxing ranks. Knecht, University of Wisconsin champion for four years, and undefeated in inter-collegiate competition, will enter pro ranks soon after his graduation from the Badger school in February. He claims kinship with Max Schmeling.

McMILLAN AND OLSON TO MEET IN MAT FINALS

Wrestling Fans Will Get Plenty of Action at Rockford

Rockford, Ill., Oct. 11—Ole Olson, 230-pound Swedish youngster from Milwaukee, unbeaten in more than 20 starts, will get his first shot among the nation's high ranking wrestlers this week when he opposes Jim McMillan of Antioch, Ill., in a windup of Rockford's all heavyweight presentation at the Coliseum tonight.

Respected by the leading grapplers of the middle west, many of whom have seen him perform, Olson gained the chance to meet McMillan by an official challenge through the Illinois State Athletic Commission. McMillan, former all-American football guard at the University of Illinois, agreed to meet Olson in a best two-out-of-three falls engagement, with a 90 minute time limit.

Both Olson and McMillan appeared on the first two local cards this fall. McMillan, awaiting the arrival of an heir early next month, expects to leave for the Pacific coast in November. This probably will be his last Rockford appearance in 1934.

Newcomers on this week's card who never before have wrestled in Rockford are Dr. Karl Sarpolis of Glen Lyon, Pa., graduate of dental surgery from DePauw and Lehigh universities; George Tragos of St. Louis, former mat coach at the University of Missouri and a member of the United States Olympic team in 1920; and Whitey Hewitt, former coal miner from Altoona, Pa. Also on the card are Pete Schuh, 230-pounder from Vancouver, B. C.; Harold Metheny of Wood River, Ill.; and Buddy Rhule of Los Angeles.

Rhule and Schuh will meet in the first preliminary; while Tragos and Metheny clash in the second. Sarpolis and Hewitt are booked for the 30-minute semi-windup.

Insanitary, Unsanitary

Insanitary is the preferred form although unsanitary also is found in most dictionaries. This is but one of the many instances (such as inactive, inapt, incapable) in which one is giving way to in as a prefix meaning not.

Seeking Wealth

"Many survive for wealth," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "in the hope of doing good, but encounter a new and fierce competition among those who seek to become beneficiaries."

DOES THE CIGAR YOU SMOKE HAVE REAL HAVANA?

Before you answer—just remember this. "Imported tobacco" doesn't always mean "Havana tobacco." And smokers know that without Havana no cigar can possibly give that full enjoyment you should get from your smoke.

Today—for 5c—you can get Havana. That's exactly what Bayuk PHILLIES gives you... long-filler Havana blended with the finest domestic tobacco grown. The same quantity and quality of Havana—the same exact blend—as when PHILLIES was the largest-selling 10c brand in America.

Have you tried PHILLIES? More men smoke it than any other cigar on the market. Isn't this convincing proof that it's the Havana in PHILLIES that makes it the one cigar—regardless of price—that smokers like best?

Bayuk's Guarantee

In 1929—a peak sales year—the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto (famously known as "Philadelphia Hand-made") was the largest-selling 10-cent brand in America.

Bayuk guarantees that this cigar today—at 5 cents—contains the same fine imported Sumatra wrapper—the same fine ripe domestic and Havana long-filler. It's the same identical cigar.

WHAT ARE LOW PRICES?

A fur coat which falls to pieces its first season? A pot or pan which chips off and loses shape when it's heated? Unknown foods at bargain prices? All these may have cost little—but their price was high because they had little value.

Think back—the disappointments and regrets directly caused by the purchase of "something just as good" because it looked like a bargain.

JEWEL FOOD STORES pride themselves on ACTUAL LOW PRICES. Only the very best is good enough for our customers. Follow the crowds to the busy JEWEL FOOD STORES—you too will find that to shop well is to dine well.

A. &amp; P. STORES Are Celebrating Big Dixon Week Sales

A. & P. Food Stores are celebrating their growth in Dixon by sponsoring a big Dixon Week Sale. They have done a good deal of planning in connection with this sale and advance reports indicate that their specials are numerous. A. & P., as you know, was founded 75 years ago by Geo. Huntington Hartford on Vessey St., New York City. However, since 1923 they have maintained two stores here and according to Messrs. W. L. McKean and H. H. Overby, the local A. & P. manager, they are still following the precepts of the founders, notably bringing good food to the public at the lowest possible cost. W. L. McKean and H. H. Overby invite you to their stores this week.

Stop that laxative habit

Medicine-laxatives often churn about in the stomach for hours—just because they can't get by that pylorus valve.

Not only that, most medicine laxatives work by irritating the delicate membranes of the digestive tract—lose their force when taken regularly—compel you to keep increasing the dose.

That's why more than 50,000 physicians recommend Pluto Water. For Pluto is not a drug or medicine-laxative but a saline mineral water. The same amount each time—no need to increase it—always performs, does not gripe, gives positive results in less than one hour. It cannot give you the laxative habit!

Pluto Water is gentle—but speedy. It promptly opens the pylorus valve—permitting the flush to enter the intestines without anxious hours of waiting.

The proper dilution—one-fifth glass Pluto in four-fifths glass hot water—is practically tasteless. Take it whenever sluggish—get results within an hour—and end that laxative habit! In two sizes: Splits (8 ounces), 25c—large bottles (3 times the quantity), 50c. At all druggists.

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CHARLES MORDEN, reporter for The Blade, telephones his newspaper an exclusive story about FRANK B. CATHAY of Riverview, wealthy and prominent, brought to police headquarters on suspicion of driving while intoxicated and accompanied by a pretty young woman who calls herself MARY BRIGGS, hitchhiker.

Next day it is learned that the man was an impostor. The real Cathay demands damages and a retraction. DAN BLEEKER, junior publisher of The Blade, convinced that "something is fishy," sends Morden to Riverview to learn all he can about Cathay.

MRS. CATHAY calls on Bleeker and takes him to the Palace hotel for a conference with her husband's lawyer, CHARLES FISHER. Fisher says Cathay will forget his grievance if The Blade publishes a retraction. Bleeker agrees to do this.

Over the telephone next day KENNEY, city editor, learns that Morden has been murdered.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"The police have found a body. They think it's that of Charles Morden."

"I," said Bleeker, "sent that boy to his death."

CHAPTER VII

THERE was no answer from Bleeker, publisher of The Blade, but an abrupt, negative nod of the head. Kenney, the city editor, pressed the receiver support down into place, then raised it again.

"Miss West," he went on, "this is Dick Kenney. Will you get me Bill Osborne on the line right away? Yes, I'll hold the line. . . hello, Bill. This is Kenney. Nixon has just telephoned in from headquarters. He's picked up a radio call. The police have found a body out on the outskirts of town. Sanborne and 1922 streets. It's a subdivision that's gone sour. There are only a few houses out there. The police think the body is that of Charles Morden."

"Take Sam Lane with you. Go down to headquarters and get on the job. Contact the homicide squad. Tell them that Morden was working on an important matter and that we're going to move heaven and earth to get the thing cleaned up. You can pass the word around that The Blade is going to expect results. You find out all the facts and then report back and I'll give you a line on the stuff Morden was working on. You pick up Fred Nixon and the three of you drop everything else to get this thing cleaned up. Understand?"

He nodded his head and dropped the receiver back into place. "Poor devil," he said. Bleeker made a fist, pounded it slowly on the desk.

"I," he said slowly, "sent that boy to his death. I didn't know it, and he didn't know it, but that's what it amounted to."

"Can we get any clues from what he was working on?" Kenney asked. "The body was found 20 minutes ago. He'd been dead 24 hours. The back of his head was smashed. He'd been taken out there and dumped."

"He telephoned yesterday," Bleeker said, "that he was working on a live lead. He had to play around with some woman to cultivate it. He didn't mention names. You go ahead and handle this thing, Kenney. Put as many men on the job as are necessary. Morden was one of our boys. He was bumped off. We're going to avenge his murder. More than that, it's an insult to the paper. We're going to clean this thing up, if we have to move heaven and earth. I'm going to see Sidney Griff, the criminologist."

"There's no harm in trying," Kenney insisted. "He left the room with quick, impatient strides."

DAN BLEEKER, seated at his desk, got Ethel West on the telephone and said, "Get me Sidney Griff, the criminologist. Tell him that I want to see him upon a matter of major importance. I probably won't have all the facts necessary to make a presentation of the case until after dinner tonight. I'd like to see him this evening."

The telephone rang. Bleeker snapped the receiver from its rest and heard Ethel West say, "Mr. Griff will see you at 8:30 tonight if that is convenient."

"Quite," Bleeker said. "Now get me the editor of The Riverview Chronicle, in Riverview. Rush the call."

He dropped the receiver back into position but held his hand on it and when, within a matter of a minute and a half, the telephone rang, he snapped the receiver to his ear with a quick motion.

"Hello," he said. "Is this Beckley of The Riverview Chronicle? This is Dan Bleeker of The Blade. We sent a man up to look over your clippings on Frank B. Cathay. A chap named Morden. Did you give him any information?"

Bleeker listened for a short time, then nodded his head.

"Now," he said. "I want you to do something for me. There may be a big story in it. I want you to find out for me where Frank B. Cathay was yesterday afternoon. In the morning if possible, but in the afternoon for certain. I want to know every move he made. You can go to any necessary expense and send the bill to me. He's what I want. Are you certain? . . . Check that, will you?"

"You call me back just as soon as you find out. If I'm not here you can leave any information with Ethel West, my secretary."

Bleeker dropped the receiver back into position, left his private office and pounded through the outer office with swift, nervous strides. He turned to the right in the corridor, walked down a long, musty passageway, with a stock room occupying the space on the left, a photographer's room with a series of dark rooms on the right. He passed a room from which came the clack of pounding typewriters driven at high speed, and pushed his way into Dick Kenney's private office.

"I telephoned Beckley of The Riverview Chronicle," he said, "for a report on Cathay. He tells me that Cathay was taken very suddenly and seriously ill yesterday morning and has been in bed ever since. I told him to verify it."

"You think Cathay and Morden had some reference somewhere?" asked Kenney.

"I'm not thinking anything just yet," Bleeker told him. "I'm getting facts. I have an appointment for 8:30 tonight with Sidney Griff. What have you found out from headquarters? Anything?"

"It's Morden all right," Kenney said grimly.

The telephone on Kenney's desk shrilled into sound. Kenney frowned and pulled the receiver to his ear.

"Kenney speaking," he said mechanically, then nodded to Bleeker. "It's for you," he said.

Bleeker took the receiver, said "Hello, this is Bleeker," and then nodded to Kenney.

"This is long distance," he said. "Riverview calling. They're coming on now. . . Hello, Beckley. . . yes, you're certain. . . there's no chance of a mistake. . . I see. . . okay. Thanks ever so much. It makes a good story for you at that end anyway. Huh. . . yes, well run something on it down here. Telephone us a complete report."

He handed the telephone back to Kenney. Kenney replaced the receiver, dropped the telephone into position on the desk, and raised his eyebrows at Bleeker.

"What did you find out?" he asked. (To Be Continued)

Pat Malone may go to Cardinals for Wild Bill Hallahan

Chicago, Oct. 11 — (AP) — The echoes of the world series; haven't died away yet, but the report and rumor season already is on.

Bill Hallahan, the world champion Cardinal's little southpaw, according to the first of the rumors, will be a member of the Chicago Cubs next season, and Pat Malone, big right-hander, will do this pitching for the Cards.

The Cubs need a southpaw, and Frankie Frisch, pilot of the Cards, is said to be willing to part with Hallahan to get Malone. Malone won 14 games and lost seven, but was used little during the last month of the recent season, following difficulty with Manager Charlie Grimm. Hallahan won eight games and lost 12, but pitched a whale of a game against Schoolboy Rowe, in Tigers' first victory of the series.

COMPTON NEWS

BY FAYE ARCHER

Compton — The Compton M. E. church was the scene of the fall meeting of the Lee County Federation of Women's Clubs Saturday afternoon with fifty members present. The meeting was especially interesting due to the presence of the President of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. William Franklin Farrell of Chicago.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. J. J. Haas of Amboy followed by the singing of Illinois by the whole group. The collect was read by Mrs. Loretta of Ashton. Miss Marie Rasmussen, president of the Compton club, then said a few words of welcome to the federation.

Mrs. D. L. Bramer of Amboy, District Chairman of Civil Service was introduced and spoke, urging the members to increase their knowledge along this line. Mrs. D. C. Thompson of Compton, district chairman of education, was then introduced. Mrs. Nellie Bernardin of Compton, district chairman of the juniors, announced the junior night to be held in Sterling, October 23.

Mrs. William Franklin Farrell then spoke enthusiastically of the advantages of being federated and the work of other clubs.

Mrs. Vande Sand of Fulton, American Citizenship Chairman of the 13th district gave interesting facts concerning the history and display of the flag. A social hour followed the meeting with tea and waters being served in the basement.

A "candidate supper" will be given at the M. E. church Thursday night, October 18 by two sections of the M. E. Ladies Aid. A friend chicken and roast pork dinner will be served cafeteria style, beginning at 5:30.

Mr. and Mrs. Xavier Chaon of Conde, South Dakota, returned to their home Thursday after a week's visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Chaon.

Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Rogers of Chicago spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Juste Montavon.

A "500" and dancing party will be given at the Masonic Hall Friday evening, Oct. 12 for the members of the O. E. S. and Masonic lodge and their friends. A scramble lunch will be served.

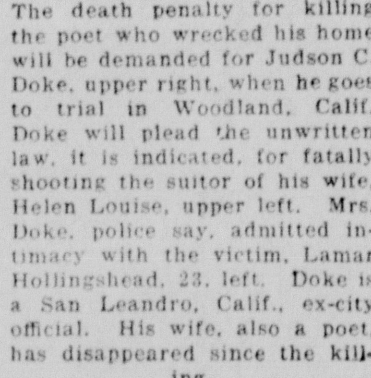

After a very successful season the Compton baseball team has folded up for the winter months. Manager Webber issued a call early this week for the suits to be turned in for winter storing. Playing 31 scheduled games during the past season finds Manager Webber's team winning one game over the half won. Besides placing second in the eastern division of the Illinois State baseball league, the Compton Club stood out as the only club to stick to their early season playing list. The attendance at the local games as well as those away exceeded that of either circuit.

Elliot Henry who all season has been the hitting power of the local club, not only stood out as the leading hitter on the list, but held down the catching assignment in a very formidable way. Much of the success of the team along with the twirling of Olaf Prestegard, should be given to this outstanding battery. Other members who showed up well were Knauer, who was weak at bat, but more than offset the weakness by the handling of the first sack in a pleasing fashion; Bradshaw at second; Montavon, Herman, W. Chaon and W. Archer gave a good account of themselves by their hitting and fielding. Arthur Chaon, who can play nearly any position in creditable fashion, won several well earned games on the mound this season. Oliver Gehant, after a late start was able to bring up his hitting average and held down the hot corner until misfortune overtook him, and was unable to continue due to a knee that had been injured in the basketball of his high school days.

The management of the club was handled by George Webber who has worked unceasingly during the season to build up a team that was able to keep pace with the other good teams of this section of the country. Much credit should be given to Manager Webber, along with the faithful backers from the community for fitting the team in new suits and equipment.

H. M. Chaon, besides furnishing three sons for the team, was a loyal backer of the team during the season. Hopes for next year are being augmented through different

Arrival of Starlings

The English starling first reached this country in 1876, when a small flock, imported from England, was liberated near Worcester, Mass.

Little or nothing was heard from these birds after being turned loose. In 1900 another liberation of 80 birds took place in Central park, New York city, to be followed a year later by 40 more pairs. Ten years later 100 more were released near Springfield, Mass. These liberations no doubt formed the foundation stock for the myriads of starlings found in practically every state east of the Mississippi river.

Daily Health Talk

MICRO-PARASITES

Man uses the dog to hunt the wolf, the former being a domesticated relative of the latter. Why, therefore, may not man use one germ to track down another?

All living things appear to be subject to disease. Are germs an exception to this rule, and if not, can we find what agents may breed disease among them, and can we then artificially cultivate such diseases among germs and thereby overcome them?

In the war against our insect pests, we use such methods effectively, breeding one insect, which from our viewpoint is innocuous, to thrive upon another insect which is destructive.

All of the foregoing is by way of introduction to the bacteriophage which d'Herelle, its discoverer, defined as "a benign parasite to wage war upon pathogenic (disease producing) organisms for the benefit of man and beast."

His discovery was based upon what almost amounts to an accidental observation, in which the spontaneous disappearance of germs from a culture medium prompted him to speculate whether the germs fell victims to another parasite or simply "curled up and died" because of an unfavorable environment.

After much study and experimentation, a substantial part of which was brilliant in the highest sense of the word, d'Herelle came to the conclusion that the germs disappeared because they were destroyed by a living filterable agent that thrives as a parasite upon germs.

His discovery and his thesis aroused much discussion and much opposition in medical circles.

The bacteriophage, however, has been effectively used in treatment, most recently, in a small epidemic of dysentery. More extensively, the bacteriophage has been used in fighting pus-producing germs, especially in osteomyelitis, a disease of the bones.

Living Our Everyday Lives

HAPPY QUEST

(By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton)
How to be happy seems to be the burning question of the day. It is like searching for buried treasure; we are all ready to seek it feverishly. Many think they have found the clue to it and urge others to join their expeditions in quest of it.

But alas, many mistake pleasure for happiness, and the two are not the same. Visit the haunts of pleasure, at Ostend, Margate, the Riviera, Paris, Piccadilly Circus, or New York, and you will see only boredom, as weariedly people chase after joy.

Are we really less happy, one wonders, than our forefathers were, or is it that we have suddenly become aware of the attainability of happiness and that we have a right to it? Anyway, men grasp frantically at happiness today, and few there be that find it.

Happiness, it seems to me, is very like health; if one has it one is hardly aware of it—until it is gone. It is just a blissful state of well-being; and it is a mistake to think too much about it, just as we may make ourselves ill by too much brooding on our health.

Yet there are rules of happiness, as of health, which it is wise to observe, and they are best learned in life. One rule is that happiness is always a surprise, an extra-dividend, so to speak, and it comes when we least expect it, slyly and by stealth.

"If I were a millionaire," said a man the other day, "I would institute a chair of happiness in every university and college." Then he gave his own recipe and technique of happiness—to cultivate a sense of proportion and keep young by asking questions. But he forgot poor old Socrates, who went about asking so many questions that the people of his town got mad and poisoned him!

No, happiness is much simpler, almost too simple to be found out. If you want to be happy get yourself off your hands, and before you know it real happiness will come, often in an odd get-up, and take you by surprise, which is the very art and essence of it.

21 OUT OF 23 ST. LOUIS CARDINALS SMOKE CAMELS!

by FRANK FRISCH

PLAYER-MANAGER — Frankie Frisch of the World Champion Cardinals.

They sure made it hot for us this year, but the Cardinals came through in great style clear to the end when we needed every ounce of energy to win. We needed it—and we had it. There's the story in a nutshell. It seems as though the team line up just as well on their smoking habits as they do on the ball field. Here's our line-up on smoking: 21 out of 23 of the Cardinals prefer Camels.

The World Series is over. The Cardinals are on the top. Their astounding achievement will go down in history—a sensational charge from 7 games ahead to win the pennant...and then the series!

They are champions—and popular champions. Frankie Frisch, Carleton Rothrock, Orsatti, Leo Durocher, Bill Walker, Medwick—all America knows this Cardinal team by heart and applauds its stirring victory.

"What do the World Champions smoke?" A natural question. And above you get Frank Frisch's answer. The preference is overwhelmingly for Camels.

The Cardinals' virtually unanimous preference for Camels is worthy of every smoker's attention. Be guided by their experience. Enjoy Camel's "energizing effect" which science has studied and confirmed. Camels are milder—made from a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS. They never get on your nerves!

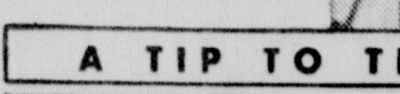

"DUCKY" MEDWICK: (Left) "A Camel takes away the tired feeling as soon as I leave the field, turns on my 'pep' again."

"RIP" COLLINS (Right) says: "A Camel has a way of 'turning on' my energy. And when I'm tired I notice they help me to snap back quickly."

"PEPPER" MARTIN: (Right) "I like Camels because when I light one I can actually feel all tiredness slip away."

THE DEANS!

PAUL DEAN says: "Smoking a Camel gives me the feeling of having more energy. Camels never give me jumpy nerves or leave a 'cigarette' aftertaste!"

"DIZZY" DEAN: "A Camel sure brings back your energy after a hard game, or any time when you're tired, and Camels never frazzle the nerves."

A TIP TO THE FANS... WHEN YOU'RE TIRED GET A LIFT WITH A CAMEL!

CAMEL'S COSTLIER TOBACCOS NEVER GET ON YOUR NERVES!

LEAF-TOBACCO EXPERTS AGREE:

"Camels are made from finer, More Expensive Tobaccos—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand."
